

No less than 1010 Cases of Arbitrary Arrest in January 2014

Report contents

- I. Introduction and Methodology
- II. Details
  - Arbitrary Arrests by Government Forces (Army, Security, Local Militias, Foreign Shiite Militias)
  - Arbitrary Arrests by the Kurdish “Self-Management” Forces
  - Arbitrary Arrests by Extremist Islamic Groups
  - Arbitrary Arrests by Armed Opposition Factions
  - Releases from the Different Detention Centers
  - Raids and Inspection Points that Resulted in Detention
  - Abductions by Unidentified Parties
- III. Most Notable Cases of Arbitrary Arrest in January
- IV. Recommendations

I. Introduction

The ongoing and daily process of documenting detainees comes with additional challenges for SNHR that have been documenting detainees since 2011. One of these most notable challenges is the families’ reluctance to cooperate and reveal any information on their family members’ arrest even secretly and especially if the arrested individual was a female due to a prevalent notion among the Syrian society that doing so would result in more torture and risks. Instead, the families try to negotiate with security forces that usually blackmail these families and demand a cash payment that can amount to thousands of dollars in some cases. Despite the fact that SNHR possesses lists of more than 117,000 detainees, including children and women, it should be noted that we estimate that the actual number of detainees have exceeded 215,000; 99% of them are being detained mainly by government forces.

The international community’s and the United Nations’, in all of its organs, failure to apply pressure on the Syrian authorities to release even one case (including those whose sentences are over), and even prisoners of conscience, affirmed a convention within the Syrian society which believes that it is useless to cooperate in the documentation process. Most of the releases were part of exchange deals with the armed opposition.

The Syrian government denies that it made any arrests or executed any abductions when asked by the detainees' families. SNHR obtains most of the information from former detainees.

All the documented detainees in January were arrested without a warrant, which has become a norm and a methodology in 99.9% of the arrests made by government forces in all of its organs and entities (army, security forces, local militias, foreign militias). In all of the many interviews we conducted with thousands of prisoners since 2011, we have never heard of an arrest warrant or a cause. Most of the arrests are either through breaking doors and arresting people from their homes or at checkpoints in the streets. Apparently, government forces follow this method in order to wipe off any evidence that might hold them responsible for these arrests and the torture, physical violence, extrajudicial killing, and the other crimes and violations that follow.

Also, government forces don't allow 99.9% of the detainees to contact a lawyer, their families, or anyone. The people who perpetrate these crimes, or other crimes, have never been punished by government forces and no case involving that have been recorded. Instead, government authorities, itself, encourage and protect the people who perpetrate these crimes.

SNHR has recorded that no less than 117,000 individuals have been arrested since the start of the popular uprising in March 2011 (99% have been arrested by government forces) these number don't include prisoners of a criminal background and include arrests cases that are based on the internal armed conflict and mainly due to the opposition activity against the ruling authorities.

The mounting number of arrests is due to a number of reasons:

- Many arrested individuals weren't arrested because of a crime they committed, but because of their relatives' involvement with armed opposition factions or because they provided humanitarian aids.
- Most of the arrests are being conducted randomly and involve people who weren't involved in the popular protests, relief, or even military activity.
- Thousands of detainees are still being detained by the Syrian regime even though a judicial order for their release was issued despite the bureaucracy, corruption, slowness, and limpness that the Syrian judiciary suffers from.

- Government forces control densely populated cities such as the main central cities and it continue to practice its systematic policies of arbitrary arrests against the civilians of these areas.
- There are many government forces-affiliated entities that are authorized to make arrests, many of these entities make arrests without checking with government forces or the judicial authorities to which these entities are affiliated. Also, these entities have its own list of detention centers that are not subject to any judicial supervision. The detainees inside these detention centers are not being treated in accordance with the stated Syrian laws.
- A great number of cases are driven by blackmails or sectarian grudges especially in unstable areas that are not held by a specific faction or it is undergoing a power struggle. As a result, many armed militias that have emerged can't be monitored as they don't answer to any particular group.

Details about detainees can be found through the search engine on SNHR website, you may also add the name and details of any detainee and the concerned team will check the data and upload it if proved accurate.

II. Report Details

The following table illustrates the distribution of arrest cases that we were able to record in January 2014.

This what we were able to record which is the minimum, due to security and logistic restriction.

Total: 1181

Releases from the various detention centers were as follows:

Raids and inspection points that resulted in detention:

Parties responsible for raids

Total: 236

Abduction cases by unidentified groups:

Total: 86

III. Most Notable Cases of Arbitrary Arrest in January

Government forces

Suad Abdou al Helal, female, from al Mseifra town, Daraa governorate, 38-year-old. On January 2, 2014, she was arrested at a government forces checkpoint near al Mseifra. Her fate is still unknown to SNHR as well as her family.

Dr, Mohammad Talal al Tahhan, from Damascus city, human doctor, he was arrested at a government forces checkpoint on January 1, 2014 in Damascus city. His fate is still unknown to SNHR as well as her family.

Dr. Abdul Salam Eid, from al Hara city, Daraa governorate, he was arrested at a government forces checkpoint on January 1, 2014 in Dara governorate. His fate is still unknown to SNHR as well as her family.

IV. Recommendations

1- Security Council must monitor the implementation of the following resolution: Resolution 2042, adopted on 14 April 2012, Resolution 2043, adopted on 21 April 2012, and Resolution 2139, adopted on 22 January 2014 which states that the crime of enforced-disappearance must be ceased.

2- The United Nations and the international community must uphold their responsibilities with respect to hundreds of thousands of detainees and forcibly-disappeared individuals in Syria.

