SNHR Welcomes EU Leadership in Pursuit of Justice in Syria

Saturday, April 21, 2018
On 11 April, at the invitation of Independent Diplomat, Fadel Abdul Ghany, chairman of the Syrian Network for Human Rights (SNHR), held a series of meetings in Brussels with EU Member State and a range of international NGOs, to press for European leadership in ending the Syrian crisis.

In his meetings, Mr. Ghany stressed the need for:
A. Clear EU opposition to Assad's war crimes and his involvement in any political transition. Given the horrific scale of Assad's atrocities, which constitute war crimes and crimes against humanity, it is vital that the EU refuse to legitimize the Assad regime in any form.
B. Support national and international accountability paths, including by leading efforts within the UN General Assembly to establish a Special Tribunal on Syria.
C. Increasing humanitarian aid to Idlib governorate, including by ear-marking European funds to support cross-border assistance.

Discussions focused on how Syrian civil society groups and the European Union can partner to achieve progress on accountability and a de-escalation of the violence. Efforts to end the Syrian crisis and achieve a political solution through the UN-led political process were also discussed.

All meetings were also attended by Yousef Wahbi of the Syrian Center for Media and Freedom of Expression, who provided insights into accountability mechanisms and the ongoing cases within European Courts on the basis of universal jurisdiction. Among the INGOs Mr. Ghany and Mr. Wahbi met were Crisis Action, Care International, the European Foundation for Democracy, the European Institute for Peace, Oxfam, PAX, Quakers Council Europe, and the Red Cross EU. In all meetings, Syrians made clear that they would do everything in their power to end the bloodbath in Syria.
